

Radiology of the Shoulder

Anatomy

Imaging studies for the evaluation of shoulder pain

- Plain film radiography- first imaging modality for all shoulder pathology
- CT- pre- and post-op evaluation
- MRI- best initial modality for soft tissue injury
- Bone scan- suspected metastases
- Arthrography- imaging after injection of contrast into the joint space
- Ultrasonography- not widely used in the US

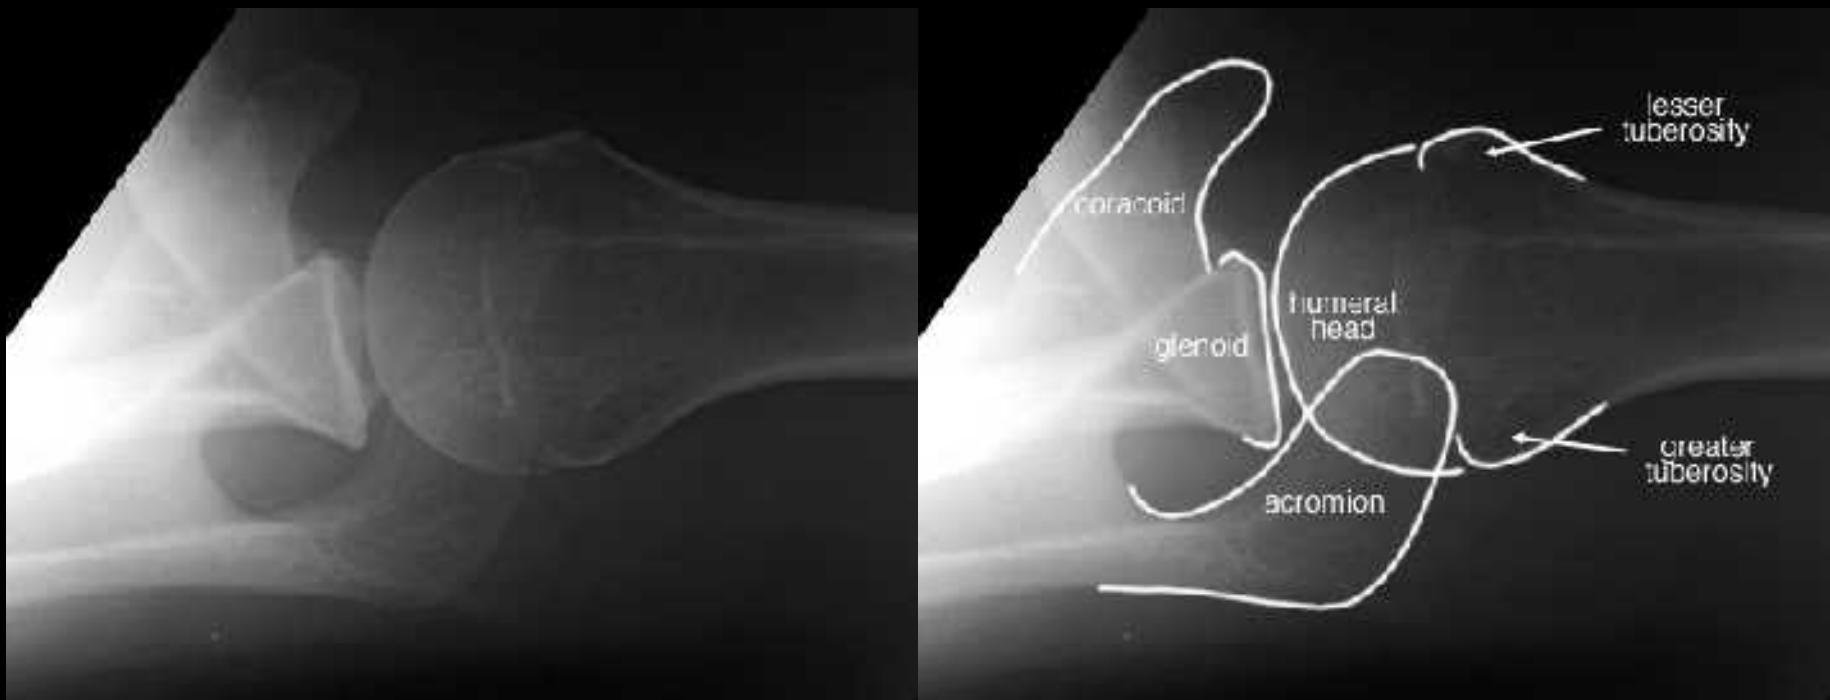

AP View: External Rotation

AP View: Internal Rotation

Axillary View

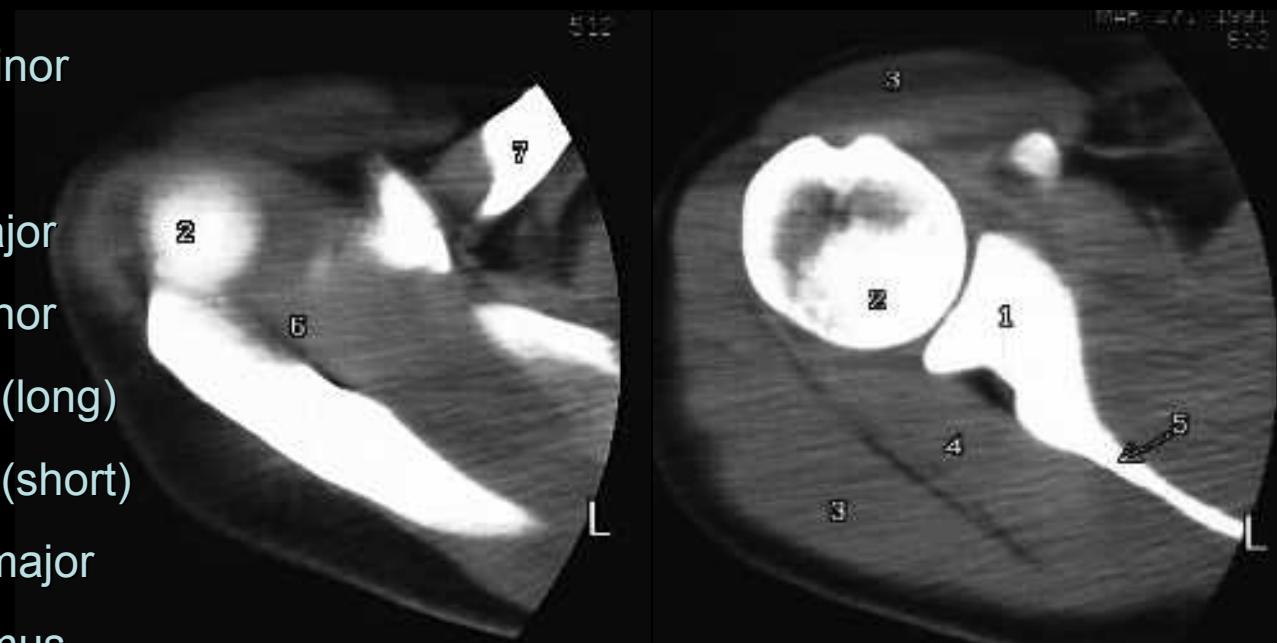

MRI

CT

- | | |
|------------------|--------------------|
| 1) Glenoid | 9) Teres minor |
| 2) Humerus | 10) Triceps |
| 3) Deltoid | 11) Pec major |
| 4) Infraspinatus | 12) Pec minor |
| 5) Scapula | 13) Biceps (long) |
| 6) Supraspinatus | 14) Biceps (short) |
| 7) Clavicle | 15) Teres major |
| 8) Subscapularis | 16) Latissimus |

Anterior Dislocation

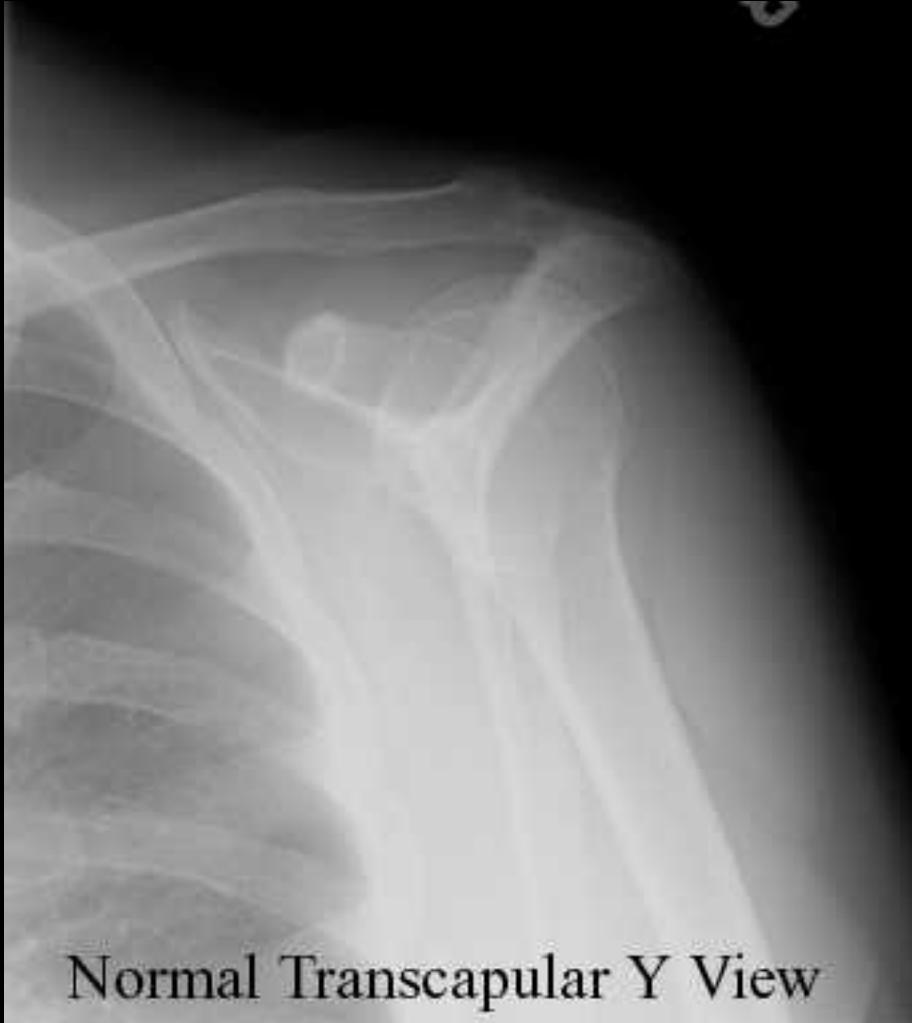

Normal

Frontal

Anterior Dislocation

Normal Transcapular Y View

Transcapular Y View

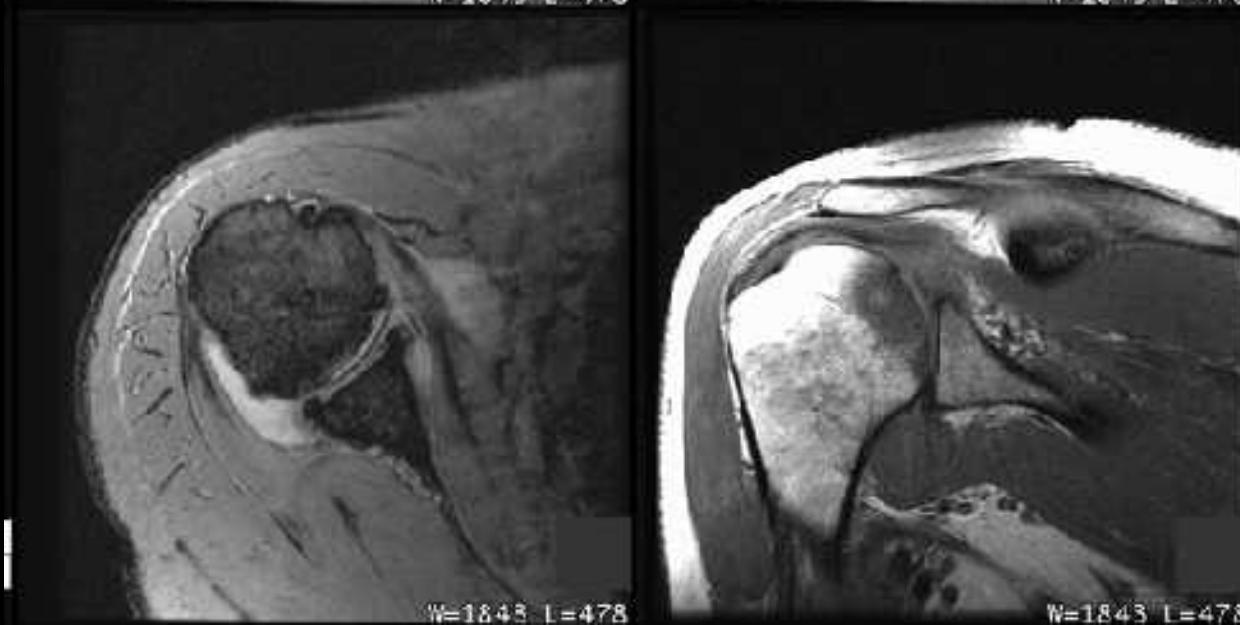

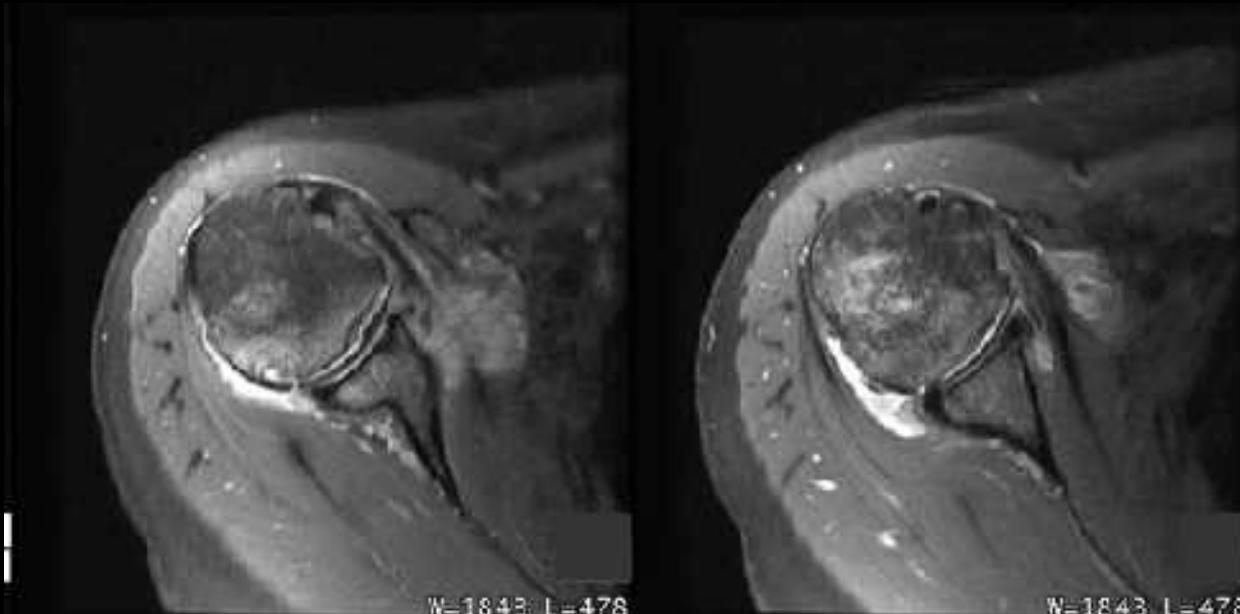

Avascular Necrosis

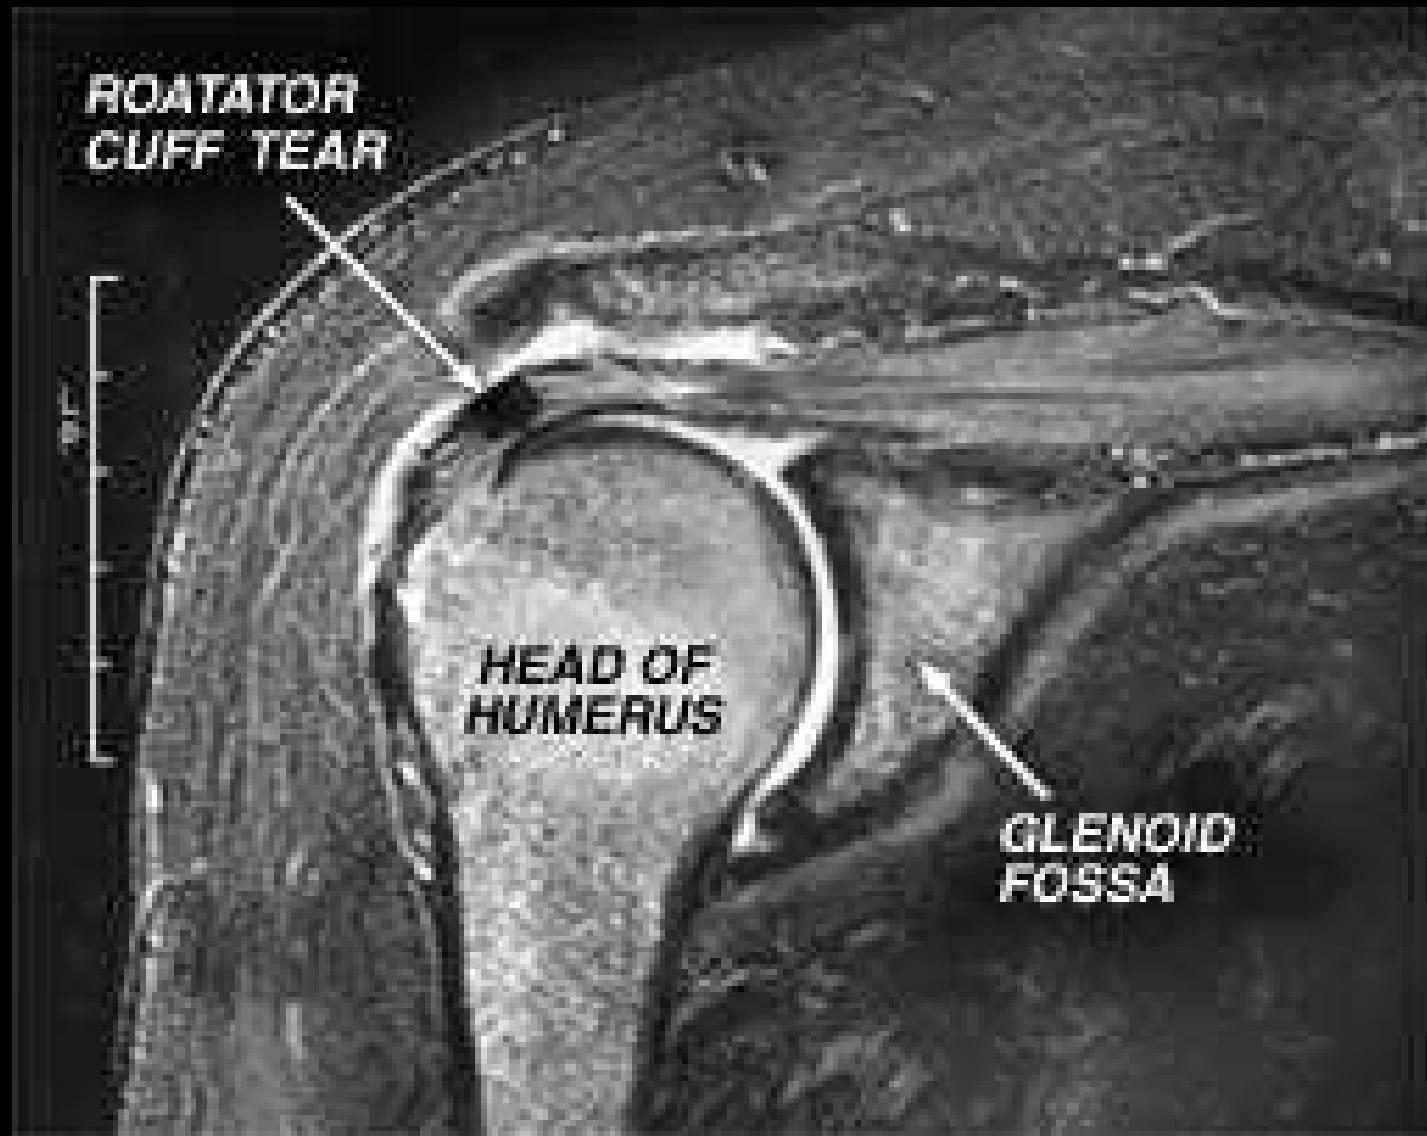

LearningRadiology.com (C)
All Rights Reserved

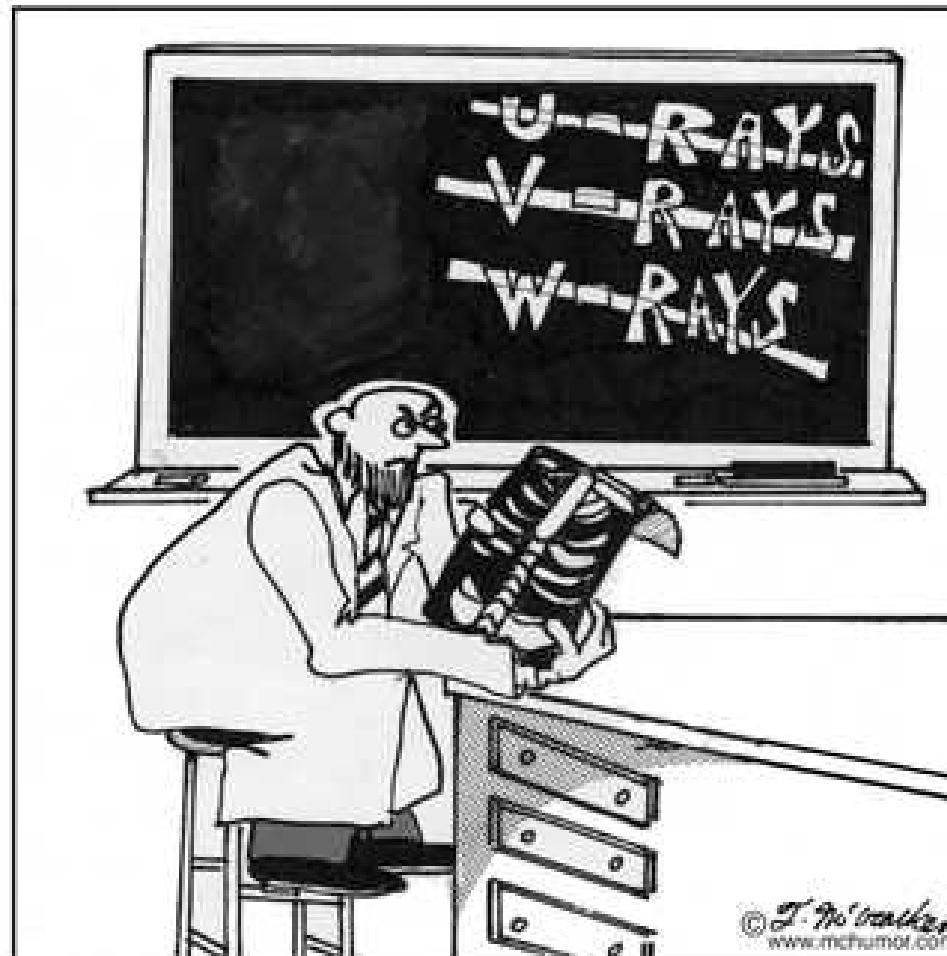

Avascular Necrosis

McHUMOR

by T. McCracken

Roentgen tries to figure out what he's discovered.

